Harmon

The Harmon Coat of Arms was granted to John Harmon, Bishop of Exeter. Harmon was born about 1465 at Sutton-Coldfield, Warwickshire, England, and died there in More Hall on Oct. 23, 1554. He was buried on the north side of the chancel of the church at Sutton where a monument was erected to his memory. On an escutcheon over the east window of the south aisle of the church are the Bishop of Exeter's coat of arms, and the same arms are under the King's arms on the south wall of the north aisle, and on the north wall of the south aisle. (By William Dugdale, 1730.)

FOREWORD.

The Harmon Genealogy is the most complete history of the family in existence, and comprises all branches in New England, including the Scarborough, Maine branch, the Saco and York, Maine branch, the Springfield, Mass. branch, and the Braintree, Mass. branch, and contains the records of over 5,000 descendants and a mass of historical data. It also contains a good account of Col. Johnson Harmon, the famous Indian fighter; Capt. Allison Harmon, the strong man, of Maine; Gov. Judson Harmon, of Ohio; Mrs. Grover Cleveland (now Mrs. Thomas J. Preston) wife of the ex-President of the United States; the Harmons who fought in the first Indian Wars, the French War, the Revolution, the War of 1812, and the Rebellion; and the Harmons who were the first settlers of New England towns.

The book represents the combined efforts of a number of descendants who have written the history of the Harmon family, including: Rev. George M. Bodge; Mr. Charles L. Harmon, of Manchester, N. H.; Hon. Cyril P. Harmon, of W. Buxton, Me.; Judge George W. Harman, of Bennington, Vt.; and Artemas C. Harmon, of Washington, D. C. The work was started about 50 years ago and was recently completed, edited and published by the author after five years of work.

It is appropriate to state, that on account of the scarcity of paper at the present time, and in order to reduce the cost of printing the book, the pages have been printed in full width and depth and reduced slightly in number from that which was originally contemplated. This reduction necessitated the elimination of all unimportant material, such as certain allied families, unattached families, and miscellaneous photos, but the main records have not been cut. The bulk of these records was never printed before.

EXPLANATION OF THE RECORDS.

The name of the head of the family is printed in CAPITAL letters, and name of the father, grandfather, great grandfather, etc. in parenthesis, follows in order. The head of the family also appears in the father's family, which is found in the earlier generation by consulting the index at the end of the book.

In order to save time and space the following abbreviations are used through this book: b. for born; d. for died; m. married; int. intention; unm. unmarried; prob. probably, etc.

THE NAME, HARMON.

The early forms in England were, HERMAN and HARMAN. In New England, where the family first settled, HARMON is used most entirely, while in other parts of the United States, HARMAN and HARMON are used extensively. The name is misspelled in a number of variations as, Harmond, Hammon, Hammond, Hermon, Herman, and Hannon.

THE HARMONS IN THE ENGLISH NAVY.

From the Dictionary of National Biography, London: Sir John Harmon (born about 1620) Admiral of the English Navy, is conjectured to have belonged to the Harmons of Suffolk, a county which furnished several commanders to the Navy. It seems that he was also one of a family of ship owners, whose ships were engaged for the service of the state, but the first distinct mention of John Harmon is as commanding the "Welcome" of 40 guns and 200 men in the Battle of Portland, on Feb. 18, 1652-3. He also commanded the "Welcome" in the fight off the mouth of the Thames, on June 2-3, 1653, and the ship being disabled he was sent in charge of the prisoners. In August he was transferred to the "Diamond", 160 men and 36 guns, in which the following year he accompanied Blake to the Mediterranean. He captured a prize that was very rich, but had little silver in her, and returned to England Oct. 1655. He later commanded the "Worcester" and was at Santa Cruz, and in 1665 was in command of the "Royal Charles", carrying the Duke of York's flag in the battle of June 3d, when the Dutch flagship, "Eendracht" was blown up, while engaged with the "Royal Charles". A few days after the battle Harmon was Knighted and promoted to be rear admiral of the white squadron. He also sunk the French fleet at Martinique in 1667. He arrived again in England and died Oct. 11, 1673. His portrait by Sir Peter Lely is in the Painted Hall at Greenwich, to which it was given by George IV. Harmon's widow, Dame Katherine Harmon, was living in 1699. His only son James Harmon, a captain in the Navy, was slain in a fight with an Algerian cruiser, on Jan. 19, 1677, and his only dau. married Dauntsey Brouncker, of Earl Stoke, Wiltshire, who died in 1693, leaving two dau. who died without issue.

From the Royal Navy, by Wm. L. Clowes: Capt. Thomas Harmon, of the Tiger 46 guns, distinguished himself while on convoy duty in 1672, in the Mediterranean. In a two-hour fight with the Dutch "Schackerloo", 28 guns on Feb. 23, 1674, Capt. P. DeWitte surrendered to Harmon, who took his prize into Cadiz, where the Spanish governor released DeWitte and his men. Harmon received a musket ball under his left eye, but he soon recovered. DeWitte lost 50 killed and 70 wounded, including himself.

In 1677 Harmon commanded the "Sapphire", 34 guns, in the Mediterranean, and on Sept. 10, he fell in with the Algerine man-of-war, "Golden Horse", 46 guns, and engaged with her. In this fight the brave Harmon fell mortally wounded.

Capt. James Harmon commanded the "Guernsey", 32 guns, and on Jan. 10, 1678 engaged the Algerine man-of-war, "White Horse", 50 guns and 500 men. The "Guernsey" used her guns with telling effect that the enemy soon sheered off. The English lost 9 killed, including the brave Harmon, 3 musket balls in succession pierced him, yet he continued in command. He was carried below and died three days after the fight. Capt. James Harmon was a son of Admiral Sir John Harmon. His relation to Capt. Thomas Harmon is not clear. John Harmon born about 1625, commanded the "Welcome", 40 guns, in the first Dutch war. Captain to the Lord High Admiral in the battle of June, 1665, Knighted, promoted Rear-Admiral June, 1666, and was severely wounded in the battle. He was Vice-Admiral and Admiral in the 3d. Dutch war. He died Oct. 1673.

Capt. William was in command of the "Hawk" fireship, June 30, 1690 at the action off Beachy Head. In 1693 he commanded the "Mermaid", 32 guns. In Sept. 1694 with the "Advice", 42 guns, Capt. Harmon, in an attack on the town of Leo'gane (San Domingo) in the West Indies, was mortally wounded and died Oct. 6, 1694.

THE FIRST HARMONS TO EMIGRATE TO AMERICA.

In the musters of the inhabitants of Virginia appears, Charles Harmon, aged 24, who came in the ship "Furtherance", in 1622.

In 1629 Roger Harmon was master of the ship, "The Four Sisters", from London to America.

On March 6, 1634, Thomas Harmon, Vicar of Hedcorn, embarked in the good ship, "Hercules of Sandwich", John Witherly, master, and transported to the plantation called, New England in America.

In July, 1635, Francis Harmon, aged 43, John Harmon, aged 12, and Sarah Harmon, aged 10, sailed in the ship, "Love", Joseph Young, master, from London for New England.

In August, 1635, John Harmon sailed in the ship, "Bachelor", John Webber, master, from London for Boston. He was a mariner and desired to seek employment on arrival in America.

In 1635 Capt. Thomas Harmon was master of the ship, "Peter Bonadventure", from London for Barbadoes.

On July 27, 1635, Ellis Harmon, aged 18, was transported from London to Virginia in the "Primrose", Capt. Douglass, master.

On Jan. 2, 1634, Richard Harmon, aged 20, transported to Virginia in the merchant, "Bonadventure", James Ricofte, master.

Dec. 23, 1679, William Harmon was a land owner in the Island of Barbadoes. He had 13 servants and 32 acres of land.

In 1774, James Harmon, a tailor of Cambridge, was an emigrant from London in the ship, "Peggy".

THE ORIGINAL AMERICAN ANCESTOR OF THE SCARBORO BRANCH.

It is stated in certain histories that Nathaniel Harmon, the first of the name to settle in Braintree, Mass., was the father of John Harmon, who first settled in Wells and then in Scarboro, Me. There are no known records to prove that Nathaniel was the father of John Harmon, and it is also doubted by many people who have searched for Harmon ancestry. The writer of this book would like to claim Nathaniel as the progenitor of the race, but before doing so would like to have evidence to prove it and also some verification of the statement.

The records of Braintree, Mass., specify the names of Nathaniel's children born in Braintree, but they do not include the name of John. However there was a lapse of ten years, (1642 to 1652), between the birth of his daughters, Mary and Sarah, and therefore it is possible that John could have been born during this period. It is also possible that John was born in Dorchester, Mass., on account of the following: "Nathaniel Harmon, one of a committee met at Dorchester and was allotted land there, 1662." also, "John Hamon bp. 20, mo. 4, 1652." (Dorchester Church Records).

In opposition to the contention that Nathaniel was the father of John Harmon, Mr. Charles T. Libby, author of the Libby Genealogy and a well known lawyer, of Portland, Me., writes, "I have interviewed the person who furnished the statement that Nathaniel was the father of John Harmon in Mr. Little's book, Genealogical and Family History of Maine, but he will not vouch for it." Rev. George M. Bodge, who searched for years for the record of the original Harmon ancestor also stated in his letters that he never found any evidence to substantiate the statement that Nathaniel Harmon was the father of John Harmon, of Wells and Scarboro, Maine. Therefore, the writer has placed John Harmon as the original American ancestor of the Scarboro Harmons.

THE SCARBORO, MAINE, BRANCH.

Scarboro was the home of this branch of Harmons in America. It was here that the family grew to large numbers, and spread all over New England and the western states as far as California, and also in Canada. In 1800 Scarboro contained 25 families of Harmons, averaging eight members to a family. Not until 1790 did the Harmons leave Scarboro and settle in other towns, in large numbers, when Buxton housed six families, and Standish four, and Machias one. In 1815 several families moved to Eaton, N. H., and in 1840 the number of Harmon families increased to 25 in this part of N. H. In 1860 Buxton contained 32 families, all of which descended from our Scarboro ancestors. Machias and vicinity, in 1850, had 15 families, and in 1880 Standish had 13 families. In 1860 Portland contained 17 families of Harmons. About 1849-50 a large number of the family went west, probably in search of gold and from all reports most of these became very wealthy.

On account of the affection and good will, which every descendent of the Scarboro Harmons should bear toward the ancient town, the writer has added, in the following pages, a brief story of the early settlement of Scarboro, with the names of its first settlers.

SCARBORO, Cumberland County, (originally York County), Me., situated on the sea coast, midway between Portland and Saco, was first settled by John Stratton at Stratton Island, prior to 1631. In 1631 it was granted to Capt. Thomas Cammock, a nephew of the Earl of Warwick, who probably obtained for him a grant. He received 1500 acres, between Black Point and Spurwink river, from the Plymouth Council, but soon sold his grant and went to the West Indies where he died Sept., 1643.

The town of Scarboro was the sixth in the state to organize, and during the 17th century was one of the principal business centers of the state of Maine. Being situated on the sea coast, it is a noted summer resort on account of its fine beach for bathing.

Blue Point now a part of Saco was settled next by Richard Foxwell and others. Dunstan was settled soon after, Henry Josselyn, brother of the distinguished voyager, arrived in 1634. The town was named for Scarboro in England. In 1659 or 60 John Libby settled in Scarboro. He came from Broadstairs, Kent County, England, and is the ancestor of a large family of Libbys in America. He died in 1682.

Early Settlement of Scarboro: Of the first planters who settled near Thomas Cammock, were Stephen Laphorne, Ambrose Booden, and Robert Jordan. These men settled on his place as tenants. Richard Foxwell and Henry Watts came with Thomas Lewis and Capt. Richard Bonython in 1636. They received their grant upon condition that they would transport 50 persons within seven years who would settle upon it. Watts deeded a little later one half of his land to Ralph Allison and called it in the deed, Black Point, alias Scarborough. George Deering and Nicholas Edgecomb came in 1639, and William Smith in 1640. According to Smith, when he came to Black Point in 1640, there was four plantations there, those of Richard Foxwell, Henry Watts, George Deering, and Nicholas Edgecomb, and that some time later Hilkiah Bailey, Edward Shaw, and Tristram Alger came.

The third principal settlement was made at Dunstan, about 1651, by the brothers, Andrew and Arthur Alger. They bought 1000 acres from the Indians and called it "Dunster" after their native town in County of Somersetshire, England. In 1671 Henry Jocellyn claimed there was 50 houses at Black Point, and it became a flourishing seaport.

The Indian outbreaks exiled many of the old inhabitants who never returned. Below are a few names of the persons who settled near what is now called, "Scottow's Hill", before 1700: Henry Jocelyn; Robert Jordan; Henry Williams; John Libby; Christopher Collins; Joseph Phippen; Michael Maddiver; John Tenny; Andrew Brown; Samuel Oakman; Elias Oakman; Christopher Paige; Giles Roberts; Richard Moore; William Shelden; Nathan Bedford; James Robinson; John Burrage; William Burrage; Gyles Barge; John Alger; John Palmer; John Austin; Roger Deering; John Samson; John Fickett; John McKenney.

During the Indian wars about this time, the town was pillaged to such an extent that the settlement was deserted, the people seeking places of greater safety and not until after 1700 did the people return. The second settlement of Black Point began about 1702, the first settlers being a band of seven persons who came from Lynn, Mass. These were, John Larrabee, Henry Libby, and his three sons, and Charles Pine, and a Mr. Blood. In 1719 the inhabitants increased to such an extent that it was decided to organize a town govt. In 1761 there was 310 taxable polls, and 190 houses. In 1791 the inhabitants numbered 2235, or about the same as Portland.

A few of the people who came after 1700 were: Jonathan Andrews; John and Nathaniel Babb; Dr. Alvan Bacon; Moses Banks; Joseph Berry; Joseph and Samuel Boothby; Arthur Bragdon; Solomon and Gideon Bragdon; Job Burnham; Joseph Calfe; John Coolbroth; Roger Deering; Henry Dresser; Robert Elliott; Joseph Emerson; James Fly; Daniel Fogg; Benjamin Foss; Caleb Graffam; Daniel Hasty; Nicholas Hearne; Samuel Harmon; Fergus Higgins; George Height; Hunnerwell Fosters; Aaron Jewett; John Jones; Richard and Rufus King; Capt. Alexander Kirkwood; Nathan Knight; John Larrabee; Henry Libby; William and Paul Thompson; James Tyler; Elliott Vaughn; Walter Warren; Joseph Waterhouse; William Watson; Thomas Westbrook; Dr. Nathaniel Winslow.

The first meeting of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of Dunstan Corner, was held at the house of Samuel Harmon in Jan., 1802. Rev. Lot L. and E. C. Harmon were among the pastors of the Free Baptist Church, of Scarboro, which was organized in 1831.

Scarboro at the present time: The population of Scarboro has remained nearly constant for 150 years past. In 1790 the number of inhabitants was about 2200, and it was a flourishing ship-building town, while in the census of 1917 gives the population of Scarboro and West Scarboro, as 2260. The writer visited Scarboro in the summer of 1919, and secured a few pictures of the places of historic interest. Farmer Googins who was at work in the fields, was interviewed. He lives at Dunstan Landing on the spot of Gov. William King's birth place. He told of the old King house being taken down in 1915, and a number of the old relics of the house were disposed of. King was the first governor of Maine, and lived later on Scottow's Hill. Clams are still plentiful on the clam flats of Scarboro, judging from the quantity of large clams Farmer Googins digs for the Moulton House shore dinners.

Dunstan Landing, situated on the Dunstan river, is about a mile distant from the sea. This is the place where large three-masted schooners were built and launched by our forefathers several hundred years ago. The river at Dunstan Landing is now only about 25 feet wide and is fresh, and it is gradually filling up, and disappearing. This change in the river was caused by the dyke, which was built about 50 years ago when Dunstan river was wide and deep. The dyke is situated between Dunstan and the sea, and is now used for the road bed by the railroad.

Dunstan river several hundred years ago was 300 feet wide, and large wooden ships were built by our ancestors on Scottow's Hill and at Dunstan and then launched at Dunstan Landing. It is said that logs used in building the ships completely filled the road leading from Dunstan Landing to the Corner, in these early days. All trace of this ship-building enterprise has completely disappeared.

The old vital records of Scarboro are kept in the town clerk's office in the old Dr. Bacon house, located at Dunstan Corner on the Portland road. Across the road from the Bacon house is the Dunstan P. O. and the Knight store.

Scottow's Hill is a short distance inland and some of the old houses there built hundreds of years ago can be seen from Dunstan Landing. Black Point was also visited and the Hunnewell house said to be the oldest house in Scarboro is still in a good state of preservation and occupied by a family. The Hunnewell house has a number of Indian stories connected with it. It is said that Hunnewell had fights here with the Indians, and that one day he was cutting hay on his place when an Indian crept up behind him. Hunnewell allowed the Indian to get close to him and then turning quickly around with his sythe he reached out and cut the Indian's head off. In this house is to be seen the old loop holes of colonial days, that were used in the fights with the Indians.

JOHN HARMON, THE FIRST, OF SCARBORO, MAINE.

The first mention of this John Harmon was in the old court files of York County, Maine: "July 9, 1667 John Harmon, servant of John Symons, was presented for swearing two oaths."

The following is a description of the Narragansett Fort fight, on Dec. 19, 1675, in which he fought: "The Commissioners of the Colonies of Mass., Plymouth, and Connecticut met at Boston, Nov. 2, 1675, and voted to raise 1000 men with arms, and each colony to furnish its proportion. Josiah Winslow, Governor of Plymouth, was chosen Commander-in-chief on Nov. 12, 1675."

"The Massachusetts companies were mustered on Dedham Plain, Dec. 9, and before marching the men were promised a reward in lands for their services, in addition to pay, provided they drove the Narragansetts out of the fort. On Dec. 10, seven companies of Massachusetts men marched under command of Major Samuel Appleton, of Ipswich, and joined the Plymouth companies and the Commander-in-chief and the Connecticut men."

"The Indian fortification was in Rhode Island at a place now called South Kingston. The English lost heavily and it seemed they would be repulsed, but the day was saved when a company of Connecticut men attacked the Indians from the rear. The English lost six captains and eighty men killed, and 150 wounded, and they all suffered disastrously from the intense cold."

"The war raged fiercely for months after the destruction of the Narragansett stronghold, but was ended when King Phillip, the Indian chief was killed on Aug. 12, 1676."

"In this war 600 English were killed, twelve or thirteen towns totally destroyed, and many others damaged, 600 buildings were burned, and one-tenth of the families of the colonies were burned out, and a large number of cattle and a large amount of property, was destroyed. A monument was later erected on the battle ground in South Kingston to commemorate the Narragansett Fort fight."

John Harmon's name appears in a list of Hampton and Salisbury soldiers at Black Point Garrison, Oct. 12, 1676, under command of Lieut. Tippen or Tappan. This was after the Narragansett Fort fight in which he took part on Dec. 19, 1675. It is said that during a parley with the Indians, who appeared at the Garrison 100 strong, the inhabitants took the opportunity to escape to the westward towns of Wells, Portsmouth, etc. John Harmon settled in Wells to which place he probably escaped with the other inhabitants of Black Point. In this attack the Indian chief, Mugg, or Mog Hegan, was killed by Lieut. Tippen, who was sent from Boston with a company of soldiers.

Land Grants and Deeds of John Harmon:

John Harmon, at Wells, took the Oath of Allegiance to the Massachusetts Government, Nov. 6, 1677. In 1677 grants of land were made to John Harmon upon condition, "that he build a house and lives therein." His name appears in a list of inhabitants of Wells from 1641 to 1687. In 1698, 50 acres were granted to John Harmon, the same lying between Webhanet and Ogunquit rivers, on the King's highway.

In 1686, John Harmon, of Wells, made a complaint before the grand jury that Richard Rogers had entered upon his land at Wells and carried off 18 loads of candle wood. Rogers was found guilty of trespass and fined, "5 barrels of tar at 5 gallons per barrel." (This term, "candle wood", applied to pitch knots which were used in place of candles.) (History of Wells by Bourne.)

* Fat heart of pine - Still used in South - and

In 1694 a grant of land was made to John Harmon in Kennebunk. The earliest permanent settlers of Wells when it included Kennebunk, were the ancestors of the Harmons and others who were here prior to 1653. (Kennebunk by Remick.)

John Harmon, of Scarboro, Me., in 1728 appeared in a list of soldiers who were in the Narragansett Fort fight on Dec. 19, 1675, and who were granted land in Amherst, N. H. in 1728. He drew lot No. 37, but this lot was exchanged for another one. In 1732, 840 soldier's claims were allowed, the Plymouth soldiers sharing equally with those of the Mass. Colony.

He was not in the lists of the Mass. Colony soldiers, but was probably listed with one of the Plymouth companies of which there are no lists.

To the soldiers who marched in 1675 Narragansett township No. 3, now Amherst, N. H., was granted in 1728. John Harmon alive in Scarboro, Me., was a soldier grantee. His claim was drawn by Thomas Stocker, Jr., to whom it was probably sold in 1734. (It may be of interest to add here, that it was in a search for the war record of this John Harmon, a maternal ancestor of Rev. George M. Bodge, that he (Bodge) discovered the Treasury books of John Hull, the contents of which became the basis of his book, "Soldiers in King Phillip's War.")

In a petition of the inhabitants of Scarborough and Biddeford, dated May 26, 1742, in regard to the Narragansett soldiers in 1733, appears John Harmon, Samuel Harmon, and Nathaniel Harmon.

JOHN HARMON, the 1st, b. prob. 1650, m. (prob. 1677), Sarah Roberts, dau. of William Roberts of Oyster River, (now Durham, N. H.), near Dover, N. H. The first mention of him is in W. B. Smith's, "Memorials of Machias," where in May, 1778, his name appears in a list of citizens for a subscription to the support of Parson Lyon. He built a log house in what is now Marshfield and his family was b. there. In 1804 he built a frame house which was occupied by his son, Samuel, during his life and in 1898 was occupied by Deacon Ellery Smith. Benjamin was a son of Nathaniel and was b. in Scarboro. (Taken from "Machias Union", of July 19, 1898).

The history of Machais, Me., states, that the pioneers of Machias came from Scarboro, in May, 1763. It is therefore probable that Benjamin Harmon came shortly after this time, as he was one of the first settlers of Machias.

An affidavit of Daniel Foster, of East Machias, formerly Machias in Washington Co. Me., dated Jan. 28, 1853, states that Capt. Ephraim Chase was commander of an armed vessel called, "Nesquoit", during part of the Revolutionary war, and Mr. Benjamin Harmon, Foster's neighbor in Machias, was 2d. lieutenant. The vessel carried 10 guns and cruised between Boston and Machias.

In 1787 Benjamin Harmon, of Machias, was appointed one of the Hog Reeves, and in 1790 he was on the school tax list. In 1794 he was sergeant in Capt. Gideon O'Brien's militia company. In 1804 he was a juryman and also the surveyor of highways in Machias.

(Capt. Allison Harmon, the strong man of Maine. The following stories were told by J. Oliver A. Harmon, of Buxton, and others who knew Allison: "Allison Harmon followed the sea and as mate and captain of his vessel was well liked by all of his men. His wife was Abigail Emery and he thought very much of her, but finally he went insane and then he wanted to kill her. At one time when she was in the house, and after setting fire to it, he stood at the door with a pitch fork thinking she would come out that way, and he could kill her, but she escaped by another door."

"Allison was of medium height but very broad across the shoulders, he was solidly built, and as spry as a cat. At one time when loading his ship with lumber he sent 4 men to bring down to the vessel a piece of heavy timber, but they could not move it, whereupon Allison alone shouldered the timber and carried it aboard."

"When he was insane the people were much afraid of him and finally they built a very strong cage and by force of numbers managed to capture him and confine him in the cage. He was very cunning under confinement and at times would project his paw like hand through the bars pretending to shake hands, when he would pull the unfortunate person roughly up to the cage and threaten to pull the arms out at the shoulder."

According to another story: "Allison lived in Scarboro until 1850 when he died. He was a sea captain and a man of extraordinary strength, who, after the crew failed to lift the new anchor, would shoulder it with ease and carry it down to the vessel with the cabin boy hanging on behind. When he became crazy the authorities attempted to capture him at his house and gathered a large number of men to assist. He thereupon, locked the doors and went up on the roof through a large chimney and began throwing bricks down upon his would-be captors, and finally drove them off. This anecdote was told by Samuel Berry who lived near the Harmon house and witnessed the affair. Berry said, he was allowed to enter Allison's house at any time, as he was well liked by Allison, who saved him from a whipping when a boy."

"At another time when Allison visited one of his aunts, and on his departure he stepped around the side of the house and discharged a large pistol beside the window to frighten the women folks in the house. Of course the women were frightened and flew out of the way, and hoped that he would not come to see them again."

The following account is by the Rev. Lot L. Harmon: "Capt. Allison Harmon was a brother to Henry Harmon, the father of Rev. Lot, and a son of Capt. Samuel Harmon. Allison was b. on Scottaway's Hill or Scottows' and was a remarkably strong man and followed the sea from a boy. When 18 years old he was mate of an East India trading vessel, and in a severe storm was called upon to assist the captain in steering the ship. The captain was soon forced to retire on account of the severity of the storm, and as no other man was strong enough he stood at the helm for 48 hours continuously without eating. The captain promised him if he saved the ship in the gale, he would be made captain the next time the ship left port. The vessel was owned by the Cutt's firm of Saco, and most of Allison's sea faring life was spent in the employ of this firm."

"Allison weighed about 250 lbs., and was 5 ft. 10 in. in height, and measured three feet across the shoulders. His neck was the size of an ordinary man's body and his wrists were double the size of an ordinary man's. He is said to have lugged an anchor weighing 1600 lbs. and with one hand to have tossed over an anchor weighing 400 lbs., and also turned over a piece of southern pine that 9 negroes could not move."

"At one time an English fighter visiting Portland heard about Capt. Harmon's strength and went to arrange a fight with him. Harmon was sawing out great logs at the mill when the Englishman made his errand known and supposed the captain would require a week or two to give notice and call a large company to witness the fight, but the captain asked him to wait until he had finished sawing the log, and then they would step out in the mill yard and have it out. When the log was finished the captain took the whole thing up in his arms and boosted it out at the tail of the mill, and turning suddenly around knocked off the Englishman's hat, saying, 'Now I am ready.' The Englishman was so amazed at the exhibition of such marvelous strength and speed that he decided he did not want to fight, and after making an apology he departed.")

The following account of Dominicus Harmon (Jonathan, William, Samuel, John), was written by Cyril P. Harmon, of Buxton: My grandfather, Dominicus Harmon, was a very powerful man. I remember my father saying that, in haying time grandfather would easily do the work of two men. I think they cut hay on the salt marsh and grandfather would use a heavy scythe, and taking the left hand nob in his right, and with his left hand on the extreme end of the snath would mow in that way carrying a swathe 12 or 15 feet wide.

It was fun to hear Uncle Charles Waterhouse tell about him. I recollect one story in particular, and it was at the time Uncle Charles married Aunt Dorcas (1830). He was married either at her home or came there soon after they were married. At the time grandfather was cutting timber with the boys, Levi and Dominicus and in the morning they went to the woods as usual. Uncle Charles "calculated" he could handle an axe equal to the best man that ever trod in shoe leather, and so offered to help chop that day. Then grandfather got him an axe and Uncle Charles said it was a good one, and they started for the woods.

But Uncle Charles lagged a short distance behind to see what kind of a tree grandfather tackled. When grandfather stepped up to a good sized pine and sunk his axe into it, Uncle Charles dropped his axe into one about the same size. Both trees fell about the same time and grandfather tackled another and so did Uncle Charles, and it was down, down, down, all day. The boys kept out of the way. Uncle Charles said he cut as many trees as grandfather and nothing was said and no one seemed to think of anything unusual. The next day grandfather started for the woods as usual, but as Uncle Charles was going away with his new bride, he admitted that he never was so glad to get out of a bad scrape, as he was when he left that axe sticking in the block at the door. Then Aunt Dorcas laughed and said, "Indeed Charles you could not have done it another day."

Charles Henry, b. 1836. He served in Civil War, at Gettysburg, under Alvin, b. 1838. [an assumed name.]

Mrs. Abner Harmon (Sarah Marshall), was a woman of high character. Her memory has been cherished in the neighborhood as a synonym of goodness and virtue. She was generous, lovable, witty, musical, and charming, and died regretted by all who knew her.

Of her children: Jonathan was very much thought of by all, but was modest and unambitious. He raised a large family of 14 children. Samuel was a great wit and story teller, and of great promise, but he died young. Nathan was a man of the kindest heart under a rough exterior, a fine mechanic, but not a success as a politician. Artemas was a wit, a renowned story teller, of humorous character, a good mathematician, county engineer, and expert accountant for the State of Mass. for years. Cyrus was an impulsive man, who often lost his friends of years by his frank criticism. He was not an educated man, but remarkably well read in historical affairs of the state, and the political situation of the world. He was a man of fine physique, generous, public spirited, and a forceful speaker. William was bright, strong, capable, far-seeing, and lovable. Dorcas was well read, much like Cyrus. Sally was the type of her mother.

The children of the 2d wife, Mary, were not as strong in any sense as those by Sarah. Charles Henry served in the Civil War with honor. He was wounded at Gettysburg, Pa., and served in the first corps, under an assumed name. He is buried at Gettysburg and the assumed name is over the grave. It was said he was a slave to drink, and in his periods of debauch did things that his better nature and pride deplored, and he determined, it seems, the family should not share in his disgrace.

As to the last resting place of Jonathan Harmon, the Revolutionary soldier, from the little hamlet of East Madison, on the Madison road, a little more than a mile from the bridge, near the hill, is the Jonathan Harmon farm, where Abner moved from Scarboro, Scottow's Hill, bringing Jonathan with him. The old gentleman always clung to his knee breeches, and wore his hair in a que. In 1832 he was, I presume, stricken with a shock or dizziness and fell into the fire on the open hearth. Father, with one hand crippled at the time, was near and drew him out, but the old gentleman died soon after and was buried on the hill on the left side of the road going to Madison Corner. The Harmons here being very practical people did not spend their substance in ———— sculpture, and so no costly marble has enshrined his dust, but at his head a boulder is placed.

I have one of the bills Jonathan received for his pay as a Continental soldier. Jonathan and Abner Harmon lived in Scarboro near the Allison Harmon house. Grandfather used to tell about Scottaway's Hill and he was present when Allison burned a portion of his house, which was saved when he and Samuel, brother of Allison, grappled with him and threw him to the ground.

I have lately obtained the location of "all," in the yard (probably meaning graves), and am sending you a sketch of it. The whole family were buried here, as shown by the plan, but since, all have been taken to the cemetery at Madison Corner, except this one row, and besides two or three persons, I do not believe any one knows their resting place. Now, going on the road I mentioned before, you come to the old Harmon house and two barns further north and then a few rods further, on the ridge close to the road are the graves, as mentioned. (The above account of Mrs. Abner Harmon and Jonathan Harmon, was taken from a letter written by Rev. H. W. Harmon, dated Effingham, N. H., Feb. 14, 1908, and was received from Cyril P. Harmon, of Buxton.)

A Letter from Joel M. Marshall, Esq., of Alfred, Me., to the Author:

(A remarkable letter for a man 85 years old.)

"Alfred, Sept. 7, 1919. To Artemas C. Harmon:

My dear Cousin, Thou distant yet in absence dear. Your letter of April 19, is here before me. I am not sure what my answer to that was, so I resume a duty on the matter in re-genealogical.

Sarah Marshall was twin sister to my uncle Nathan, and was the wife of Abner Harmon, of Eaton, N. H., afterwards Madison. She was no doubt an exceptional woman, everything in my experience and observation shows it.

Ruth Andrews, her mother and father's mother, I have heard old men who knew her say, was a very handsome woman, and her children and grandchildren in character and form, and worthiness, confirm their judgment.

My father, Joel, was the youngest of her children. He was captain of the Buxton and Hollis Light Infantry Co., and I have been told by men and women who knew, that he was the handsomest man in the company. He was then just six feet tall, straight as a gun-barrel, had black or nearly black hair, ruddy complexion, and dark blue eyes. His average weight was 212 to 220, strongly built but not fat or corpulent, for as usually said of the Marshalls, you never saw a fat one. Father was a blacksmith, died in 1867. Uncle Nathan was just six feet tall, and straight, and an athelete. He was a brick mason, had 4 daughters and one son. Uncle Jonathan, whom I never saw, was a ship carpenter, was six foot, two inches tall and had 8 children, 5 sons and 3 daughters. He died in 1833, in Buxton.

Perhaps this is enough about the Marshall contingent, though I may say that Daniel Marshall, grandfather, was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, and served 5 years. I have his record. Lieut. Amos Andrews, Ruth's father, was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. I think I have his record, too.

I will now discuss the Harmon side; I saw Abner Harmon in Eaton, when I was 10 years old in 1844. He was then an old man, average size, not so large as father, and I saw also at that time some of his children: Artemas, William, and Harry Harmon (who married Abner's daughter) and his family, Lot and Colby, and a girl, and Dorcas, who married Mark Blaisdell, of Eaton. Olive B., Burnham, lived with us nearly a year. She was a handsome woman; lived afterwards in Peterboro, N. H.

Artemas Harmon was Census Marshal in 1850 or '60 for Freedom and Eaton, and he accomplished the job in almost an incredible short time. My father boasted of it a great deal. One of his sons, who went from Lowell or Lawrence, was in one of the companies of the 6th Mass. Regt. that went thru Baltimore in March, 1861, and which was attacked by the famous Plug Uglies, and he shot the first Rebel that was killed in the Civil War. That was what Olive B., your aunt, wrote me in 1861. I don't recollect which son it was. (This was John M. Harmon.)

Horace Harmon, of Madison or Freedom, called on me a few years ago, I don't know which Harmon his father was, perhaps Cyrus or William, he claimed to be proud of his Marshall lineage, and spoke of Cyrus particularly. I remember he said he wore a number 18 collar.

Horatio, Nathan's son, and I had planned to go up to Madison and see them, but we didn't get there, much to my disappointment. When I visited Cyrus in 1844, he seemed to be "well-to-do." I remember his ——— of corn.

Harry Harmon, who married Abner's oldest daughter, lived way up in the woods, a mile from the village or corner, beside Long Pond. He had sons, Lot and Colby, and a young daughter, a pretty girl as I remember, a little older than I. Harry was a near relative of the celebrated Allison Harmon, the man of phenomenal strength. He was double jointed all over, weighed 18 pounds when a baby, and doubtless was the most powerful man in this section of the country. I had my information from my father and from James O. A. Harmon, who had seen and talked with him. He was later in life, insane and had to be kept in a cage. No one dared to shake hands with him, they feared he would crush their hands in his welcome grip. Joseph Harmon, late of Gorham, was also one of those dynamic wonders, and there were others.

There seems to have been another Abner Harmon, in Scarboro, I think he must have been the grandfather of James Oliver Abner Harmon, late of Buxton, prominent lumberman and manufacturer, and one of the best equipped men of Buxton for all around ability. He was my first school master. I was very fond of him all thru life, thru sun and shade to the last.

There was a John Harmon, of Scarboro, a noted wit, many of the most laughable stories that were told, were known as old John Harmon stories. All the Harmons that I know about, seem to have come from Scarboro, thou of the Buxton Harmons: Joel, Pelatiah, and Thomas, were Revolutionary soldiers from Buxton. The Harmons, of Freedom, N. H., were from Scarborough. I knew William, Daniel, and Phineas.

I have thus thrown my views upon you as a kind of side light to Delia Rich's genealogical enumeration. They may not be specially interesting, but my statements are well supported both by myself and genuine authors, thoroughly reliable. You and I are not of that class to boast of pedigree, but at a genealogical picnic we could walk in with high heeled boots. In my observation and with my personal experience I think the Harmon-Marshall—had many traits in common, both were firm and decided, active and well equipped with a liberal stock of common sense, and with mental and physical development, all they needed for home use. I do not know any Harmon or Marshall in the criminal calendar, or in the home for feeble-minded, or under-sized, and none were cowards.

I have been retired from practice for 5 years and have nothing to do but read the dailies, smoke and talk, but my strength is failing, and you can not help seeing that in my writing, and I shall soon pass the door of darkness—. I am living with my son, Dr. S. B. Marshall, of Alfred, well situated, gave him my estate years ago.

I heard that you was at Old Orchard this summer. Why did not Mrs. Rich tell you I was around? If you come this way again don't fail to see the only living nephew of that worthy lady, Sarah Marshall Harmon.

Your Cousin and Friend, Joel M. Marshall.

H. Mittie was b. Dec. 1, 1814, in Eaton, N. H., and d. Apr. 27, 1892, in Lawrence, Mass. At the time of Mr. Harmon's death the following account was published in the newspapers: "Hon. Artemas Harmon, a former prominent citizen of Lawrence, Mass., died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. John Sprague, in Malden, Mass., on Tuesday, Feb. 7, 1882, at 4.15 P. M., aged 75. He was b. in Scarboro, Me., Sept. 23, 1808, and afterwards lived in Madison, N. H., (formerly Eaton) and was prominent in public life in that section of N. H."

He served in the state legislature from 1842 to 1848, four years in the House and two years in the Senate, being elected from a politically hostile constituency by force of his personal popularity. He was an acknowledged leader and trusted counselor in his political party, and was especially active and influential as a promoter on the Whig side of the famous alliance, which sent John P. Hale to the U. S. Senate, and started a revolution in Granite State politics.

Mr. Harmon became resident of Lawrence, Mass., in 1853, was superintendent of the Atlantic Mills there, and held the municipal offices of Alderman and Auditor of Accounts. He was appointed by Gen. H. K. Oliver, in 1861, to a responsible position in the office of the State Treasurer, and he moved with his family to Malden, Mass. He held this position for a period of 18 years, when he retired from active life in 1876, soon after which he suffered a stroke of paralysis, which eventually caused his death.

He was a man of marked force and integrity of character, of a keen wit, superior intelligence, with an abundance of accurate information, especially in the department of political history; resolute and somewhat stern in his convictions, yet of a tolerant and charitable spirit, pure minded and humane in all his sympathies and sentiments, and with a kindly heart and fine social humor. His amiable life companion, a devoted mother of the best type of New England matron, survives him."

(It might be of interest to add here the following, written by her daughter, Mary Frances Harmon, in regard to the naming of Mrs. Harmon: "I heard from my mother's own lips that her father, John March, often entertained strange ministers, who came to preach for the family, and when my mother was only a few weeks old a Rev. Sherburne was at the house over Sunday, and being informed that the baby had not been named, he asked the privilege to name her, "Mittie Sherburne March," Mittie being a favorite name of his.) Charles Cobb Harmon was born in Portland, Me., Nov. 8, 1846, and attended the public schools in Portland until the spring of 1862. After a year in the Portland High School, he was employed in the book store of Davis Bros., and Bailey, and Noyes, and after an experience of six years, at the age of 21, was asked to associate with George B. Loring and Leonard O. Short, as book sellers and stationers, under the firm name of "Loring, Short, and Harmon." This firm was located under the Falmouth Hotel for 14 years, and then the Lancaster Block corner of Congress and Center Streets was erected for them. This firm has been in this location for a period of over 35 years, and in business under this name for a period of over 50 years. In 1908 their building was destroyed by fire and was rebuilt, and two stories added, and at the present time they occupy over 33,000 square feet of floor space, and employ over 100 persons.

The two senior members of the firm have been dead for several years, and the business has been carried on as a corporation since. Mr. Harmon is President; Frederick W. Robinson, Vice President; Edward A. Shaw, Treasurer; and Willard E. Plumer, Secretary.

This corporation has one of the most attractive book stores in the country, also a manufacturing, decorating, and wholesale business covering Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont. The annual sales are considerably over a half million dollars. In 1919, Mr. Harmon is still taking an active part in the business, in which he has been engaged for over a period of 50 years.

THE SACO AND YORK, MAINE, BRANCH.

Early Settlement of Saco, Maine.

In 1606 King James I, of England, granted patents to two companies, the London, and the Plymouth. These companies soon fitted out vessels to explore and plant colonies in their respective territories. In Dec., 1606, three ships and 105 colonies left England and settled at Jamestown, Va. The second expedition of May, 1607, with three ships and 100 colonists, proved unsuccessful. Through the agency of Gorges, Richard Vines and his company visited Saco river in 1616-7 and camped at Winter Harbor through the winter. This was the first habitation of civilized man in New England and our adventurers had no nearer English neighbors than those at Jamestown. This was several years before the settlement of Massachusetts, by the Puritans. (History of Kennebunk.)

The History of Kennebunkport, by Bradbury: Judge Williamson, who wrote the History of Maine, wrote to Mr. Charles Bradbury before 1837, that Richard Vines visited Saco in 1609, and that in 1616-17 he passed the winter at Winter Harbor. Saco was settled by Vines and probably John Oldham, as early as 1623. Oldham was killed by the Indians in 1637, this caused a war in which the Indian tribe was destroyed.

Saco, York County, was granted by the Plymouth Company, to Thomas Lewis and Capt. Richard Bonython, by patent bearing date of Feb. 12, 1629 and on June 28, 1631, they took possession of their grant. Blue Point, now a part of Saco, was settled soon after 1631, by Richard Foxwell and others. The town of Saco was inc., July 5, 1653, and Biddeford (formerly Winter Harbor), formerly a part of Saco, was inc. Nov. 14, 1718. On account of the Indian wars, Saco was deserted in 1688, and not until 1718 did the people return, when it was called, Biddeford. In 1762 Pepperellborough was inc., it comprising that part of Biddeford lying east of the Saco river. On Feb. 23, 1805, Pepperellborough was changed to Saco. In the records of the town from 1653 to 1688 appears, James and John Harmon, who were probably of the inhabitants.

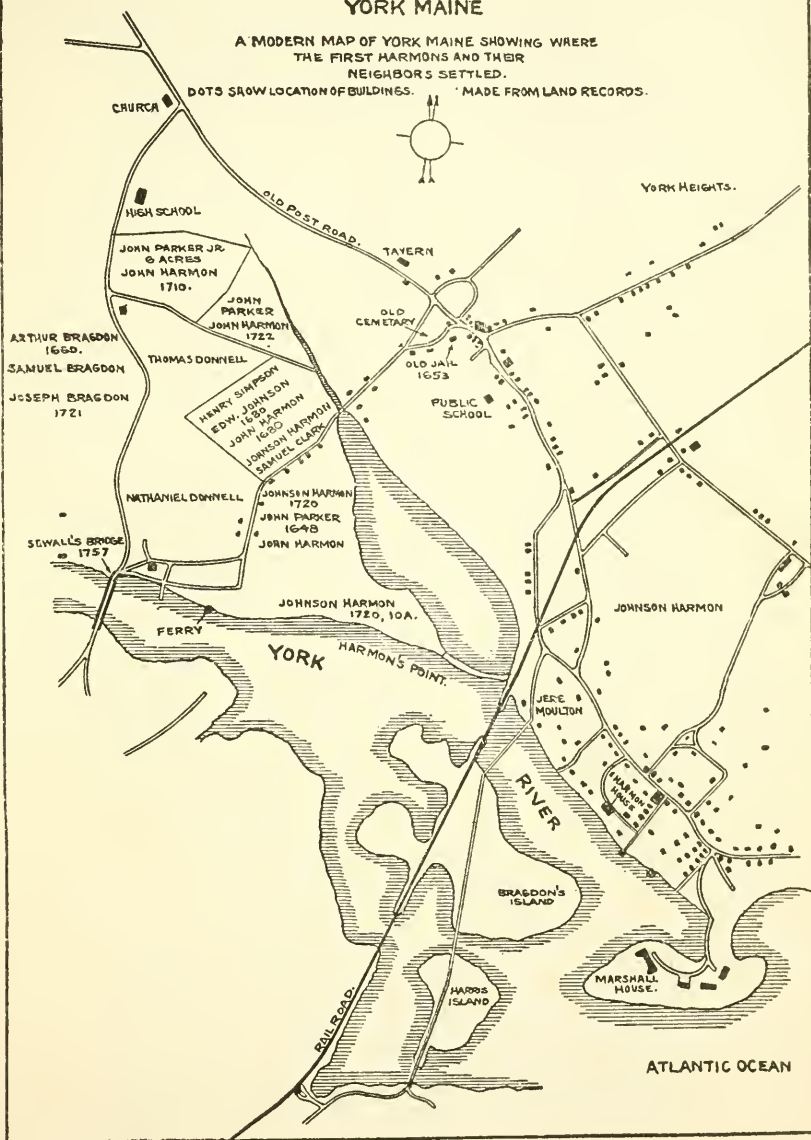

The Lewis and Bonython patent of Saco, dated Feb. 12, 1629, occupied land on the north side of the Saco river, extending four miles on the sea and eight miles up in the main land, containing 32 square miles.

In a list of inhabitants, dated in 1636, with rates to be paid, appears Capt. Richard Bonython, Richard Foxwell, and John Bonython.

In 1640, Capt. Cammock declared that Richard Foxwell has for four years lived at Black Point, in the right of R. Bonython, his father-in-law, who settled him there and gave him much freedom.

In 1680, James Gibbons, John Bonython, Phillip Foxwell, and John Harmon (of Saco), were heirs and proprietors of the land patent granted to Lewis and Bonython. James Gibbons was a son-in-law of Mr. Lewis and settled on the patent in 1642.

Mr. Hamans (prob. Harman), a planter, is mentioned in the Cleaves petition to Parliament, in 1643, against Mr. Vines.

Capt. Richard Bonython, probably settled on his grant of land in Saco, as early as his associate, Mr. Lewis. The commissioners court was held in his house in 1636, this being the first notice of his presence in Saco. The house of Bonython stood on the left bank of the Saco river, a short distance below the falls. The remains of the basement was seen in 1830, in the field owned by James Gray, Esq., a few rods east of the meeting house of the 2d parish. In plowing this field in 1760, several articles of domestic use, such as spoons, candle sticks, etc., of a unique character, were dug up. These were supposed to have been buried in the ruins of the house, which was destroyed by the Indians in 1675.

Capt. Bonython was appointed by Sir Ferdinand Gorges, one of the Counsellors for the government of the province, in 1640. The last mention of him is in 1647, he probably died not long after 1647, certainly before 1653, as his name was not in a list of inhabitants of Saco taken in 1653, though his son was.

York, Maine, and the Early Harmons.

York, County of York, was granted to Sir Ferdinando Gorges, and was the original seat of government for the Province of Maine. On April 10, 1641, it was chartered by Gorges as a borough, and Thomas Gorges, cousin of Ferdinando, was made governor, and Edward Johnson was appointed alderman. It was made a city the next year, in 1642, and was called, Gorgeana, and was named York, in 1652. In 1692 the Indians attacked the place and about 150 inhabitants were slain or captured, the remainder escaped into the Harmon, Preble, Alcock, and Norton garrisoned houses, the best fortifications in town. For further account of the York Massacre, see pamphlet of 1917, by Ida M. Wightman.

In 1743, the town of York, "granted unto Such Person or Persons as will accept of and undertake it, Liberty to Build a Bridge at their own cost over York river, Somewhere between Col. Harmon's Wharfe and Mr. Donnell's Point of Rocks above the ferry; Provided there be a sufficient way Left for Sloops to Pass and Repass, and the Inhabitants to have free liberty to Pass over the Same without anything to Pay. Voted that if said Bridge shall be built over said River, it Shall be by Capt. Samuel Sewall's Wharfe." The bridge was built in 1757, and was the first pile bridge in America. It was built by Samuel Sewall, an engineer of wide reputation.

It was on the York river, near the now famous Marshall House, that Col. Johnson Harmon and his brother, Deacon John Harmon, lived in the first half of the 18th Century. The father of these Harmons was John Harmon, who owned the Harmon garrison house, which formed, with other houses, a place of refuge for the inhabitants of York during the famous massacre by the Indians, in 1692. This old house, afterwards the Stacey house, was located near the river on the original Harmon property. Of the old garrison houses at York, the McIntire house built in 1640, is the only one that remains, while the Junkins house was taken down a few years ago.

Several hundred years ago York river was famous for its wharfs and warehouses, where extensive shipping was carried on, especially with the West Indies. Some of these wharfs still remain to this day. The Varrell wharf is located on the site of the old Harmon wharf and property. Harmon house was built here on the river at Harmon park, in 1882.

The Harmon Massacre in York, about 1715: (History of York, Me.) The people by the name of Harmon lived at the lower part of the town near the ocean. The men were sea-faring persons and dauntless in disposition. During their absence on a voyage, one or more of the Indians offered insults to the women of one of the households. On their return from the sea, determined on revenge, the Harmons invited the Indians to a "pow wow" on the point of land on the west end of the Barrell mill dam. The Indians accepted the invitation and kept up the debauch till late at night, when being very drunk, the Harmons and their friends killed every one of them.

This massacre happened on a Saturday night and the next Sunday morning the tidings of the affair spread far and wide. Father Samuel Moody, in his discourse alluded to that inhuman butchery in a terribly scathing manner and prophesied that the Harmon name would become extinct and the time would come when not one male by the name of Harmon could be found. It is said by some writers that this prophecy came true as no one by the name of Harmon has lived in York since 1830, with possibly, a few exceptions. Although they did not live in York, the descendants of these Harmons, settled in Sanford, then in Harrison, and later in Brunswick and Portland, where they reside to this day.

The Harmon Massacre occurred not more than 60 rods from the Stacey house, which was said to be the old Harmon garrison house into which the inhabitants escaped from the Indians in the York Massacre, of 1692. The old Stacey house, which formerly stood on the hill, near the southwest end of the Parish Creek bridge, on the east side of the road, had many legends connected with it. It was a quaint old wooden structure abounding in projections and sharp angles, with an enormous chimney in the center. This house was built on the declivity of a hill, which made it half basement, and was once occupied by a trader. The crevice between the outer and inner walls was said to have been filled with brick. This house stood at the head of the mill pond, which was navigable for large vessels, until the dam below was built.

As early as 1630 and '40 this building was used as a trading place and was known as a "Clubhouse." Mr. Stacey was a naval officer under John Paul Jones, in 1812, and died a U. S. pensioner at an old age. When the old house was torn down in 1870 a skeleton was found under the hearth, and a very ancient sign board with the inscription, "Coffee, Tea, Sugar, Molasses, Spices, Rum and Gin, Wine, Brandy, etc." It is thought that the skeleton was one of the Indians killed in the Harmon Massacre. A timber was marked—1634. The remains of a wharf existed in 1875, on the east side of the mill pond, nearly opposite the site of this old house.

The Harmons had seen much of the depredations of the Indians about York in the early days, and hatred and revenge was held strongly in their hearts. Col. Johnson Harmon and his brother, Deacon John Harmon, who as boys, had passed through the scenes of that frightful carnage, at the hands of the Indians, when York was destroyed in 1692. John Harmon, the father of these boys, lived in one of the four best garrison houses in the town, and the inhabitants, who were not killed, escaped into these houses. These Harmons were born fighters and leaders of men, and they became famous for their services in the early Indian and French wars. In 1711 Capt. Harmon's family garrison at York, with 30 souls, was reviewed by the order of the governor.

Harmon Coat of Arms
York, Maine

THE HARMON COAT OF ARMS.

York, Me.

(From the Hartford Daily Times, of Feb. 12, 1912).

"Few families possess a more dignified and suggestive coat of arms than the Harmon family. This valuable token of the family honor in England and insignia of the Knighthood, conferred long ago on Sir John Harmon, admiral of the English Navy, was rescued some years ago from oblivion, by Israel Harmon, of Springfield, Mass., who had it photographed and introduced to many of the family throughout the country. For years the Harmon coat of arms remained in comparative oblivion, hidden away in an old museum in York, Me., which was once used as a jail." (This jail built in 1653, is still used as a museum and contains the Harmon coat of arms, and also the old sword said to have been used by the famous Indian fighter, Col. Johnson Harmon, who was born about 1675 and died in 1751.)

"The crest of the coat of arms is shown as an American flag, seemingly so out of place in an English design. But the American branch of the family who had suffered much from British tyranny and were most loyal to the new colony in America, insisted that the Stars and Stripes should be incorporated in the family shield." (It is not known when the flag was added to the coat of arms, but as the Stars and Stripes were first used soon after the Revolution it is possible that the flag was incorporated at this time.) (The shield or escutcheon of the coat of arms is shown divided by a horizontal bar or fess, and contains four castles, two above and two below the fess. Castles were granted, according to the authorities, to those who had reduced a fortified place, or who were the first to scale the walls of an assaulted fortification. This coat of arms was handed down to the present generation by Sally Harmon Varrell, a daughter of Capt. Thomas Harmon (Nathaniel, John, John, James), a mariner of York, Me.)

The writer reproduced the Harmon coat of arms in the York museum, retaining the old English design, the odd appearance of which suggests age, and it is therefore probably several hundred years old. It seems strange that there is no mention of this coat of arms in Burke's General Armory, of London, although there is mentioned twenty different coat of arms of the Harmon, Harmon, or Hermon family. It is said by certain people that this York, Me., coat of arms is not genuine, and that it was not granted by the Herald's College, of England.

JAMES HARMON, 1st., of SACO, ME., in 1655.

In Folsom's history, of Saco, and Biddeford, written in 1830, it is stated that: "In 1655 James Harmon, of Saco, made the announcement that he slandered John Snelling." James Harmon married Sarah Clarke, May 6, (1658) or before, (the date was torn). Their children were: John, Jane, Barbara and others.

It is probable that James Harmon came over to America with the Lewis and Bonython Company, or soon after. His name is frequently mentioned in connection with that of James Gibbons, one of the proprietors of the Bonython Patent.

Edward Clarke, father of Sarah Harmon, was admitted freeman, at Wells, Me., on July 5, 1653. In 1656 he was a juryman for Cape Porpise, at York. He d. in 1661. His wife, Barbara, adm. upon his estate. His children were: Samuel, Sarah, William, Edward and others. Sarah m. James Harmon; Edward m. ——— Willmot, and d. in 1671.

At a commissioner's court held at Saco, in 1658, "James Harmon was presented for swearing, and was fine 40 shillings and bound, to his good behavior until the County Court, in a bond of 10 pounds, and Ralph Tristram for him."

James Harmon, who m. Sarah Clarke, was a very intemperate and troublesome man. He was finally put in jail in York. One of the children of Harmon was bound to James Gibbons of Saco, for 8 years. In 1661, James Harmon and his wife having separated, the court awarded her, the wife, all his property for her maintenance, part of which was in the possession of Mr. Batson. Also that the constable of Cape Porpoise, shall seize the two swine in Mr. Batson's possession and deliver them to Sarah Harmon and her child.

On Sept. 22, 1666, it was ordered that Goodis Harmon, with others shall be placed in seat 5 of the meeting house. Also on Dec. 9, 1674, Goodwife Harmon and Harmon, Jr., will occupy seat 5 in the meeting house. (The above orders were for the seating of the women in the church, Goodwife Harmon was prob. James Harmon's wife, Sarah, and Goodwife Harmon, Jr., was prob. John Harmon's wife, Elizabeth, who he m. about 1674. John Harmon later lived in York.

Under deed granted by James Gibbons, dated April 20, 1693, Sarah Harmon, claimed 34 acres of land in Saco, and 16 acres near Goosefair river. Mention is made in York deeds, of 1717, that James Harmon formerly owned land in Saco.

JAMES HARMON, 1st, of Saco, Me., b. prob. in England and came to this country when Saco was first settled. He m. Sarah Clarke, May 6, (1658?), or before. (The record was torn). She was a dau. of Edward Clarke and his

John Harmon m. 2d, in York, Me., about 1675, Deborah Johnson, dau. of Edward and Priscilla Johnson, of York. He d. in York, in 1695.

Children by first wife:

Elizabeth, b. 1674 (?), Saco, m. Feb. 28, 1694, Lieut. Joseph Banks.

Children by second wife:

Capt. John, b. 1680 (?), m. 1707, Mehitable Parker.

Mary, m. 1st, Benjamin Donnell; m. 2d, Joseph Holt.

Thomas, d. 1701.

Thomas Harmon, of York, going in a canoe from Piscataqua to York was blown out to sea by a strong northwest wind and was lost, Dec. 23, 1701. (Journal of Rev. John Pike, of Dover).

In a list of rates paid by the inhabitants of Saco, in 1670, Harmon paid 16 s. John Harmon was one of the few persons in Saco who owned horses in 1674. Carriages were unknown. On July 28, 1674, Richard Cummings, John Harmon, and others with their horses were allowed use of Humphrey Scammon's ferry, near the mouth of Saco river. In a list of the inhabitants of Saco, dated July 5, 1653, no Harmons appear.

Elizabeth Harmon, born at Old Orchard, the only dau. of Richard Cummings, m. 1st, her cousin, John Foxwell, and after his death she m. John Harmon, previous to 1680. Mr. Harmon became sole heir to that part of the Bonython Patent which fell to the wife of Cummings. The dau., Elizabeth, an only child of John Harmon and his wife, Elizabeth, m. Joseph Banks, of York, to which place Harmon removed before 1690. Banks thus acquired Capt. (Col.) Johnson Harmon and the Norridgewock Expedition.

Capt. Harmon's letter to Lieut.-Gov. Dummer and the governor's reply:

Augusta, (Maine), Feb. 25, 1722-23.

Sir:

Persuant to instructions from Col. Westbrook, I rec'd. 120 men Equipt with Snowshoes, Moginsons, and Twenty Days provisions to march up Ammoscoggin River, etc. But after some days Travel, I found the river was wholly broke up and ye Designed March frustrate. Heartily Sorry to See ye Government Disappointed in their Expectations and willing to take the best methods the Season would allow of. I took the pilots advice and with ye concurrence of ye Officers, Divided into 3 partyes, who have performed Several Scouts on Acct. of which as well as ye reasons I could not march further into ye country, I herewith present to your Honour and Shall Transmit the Same to Col. Westbrook pr. the first. I have given Orders to Capt. Heath to repeat his Marches from the Kennebec River to the Ammoscoggin River and shall keep ye rest of men continually moving with Expectation of Speedy Directions from your Honour or my Colonel, and have also ordered Capt. Gookin to Repeat his marches from Casco River to Pussimscutt Falls and from Thense to the Harry Sickett and to where as ye matter Reqrs. These 120 men yt. I have the Honour to Command being most of them old experienced Soldiers. Its a great grief to their particular officers and no less to Myselfe, that wee were obliged to March into ye woods in such a Season when wee had not a rational prospect of doing Our Country Service.

Four of my Soldiers Couming from Arrowsick the 22d instant One of them viz. George Cary fired his gun att a Tree and another of ye four called Sam'l. Stockbridge being up abreast with ye Tree Shot at (but three rods width thereof) thought he was safe, never-the-less the bullet Struck a Tree and Glancing very Strangely did unhappily Kill the sd. Stockbridge. Upon viewing the place and Examining the Other Soldiers present, I am fully Convinced that the fatal part of ye action was purely Accidental. However I have confin'd. ye man Slayer and pray your Honour will please to give Directions in ye matter.

I am your Most

Humble Servant

Johnson Harmon.

Lieut.-Gov. Dummer's Reply.

Boston, 8 March, 1722-23.

Sir:

I rec'd. your Letters by the Express with the other Papers; And I approve of your Proceedings, And think you have done the best you could for the Service. Since as you have sett forth the Openness of the Rivers and the Wetness of the Country rendered the Execution of my Ordrs for a March to Wedembesick and Norridgewock impracticable. I would have you repeat your Marches and Scoutings upon the Rivers as high as you can, And in other places most likely to find the Enemy, especially about the Grounds where the wounded Deer and Canoe were Seen, until furthers Orders, and not let the Men ly in Garrison any more than is necessary for their Refreshment. I am heartily sorry for the unhappy Disaster in the accidental Death of one of your people. I hope the Soldiers will be warned for the Time to come of such Carelessness and Folly. You must give strict Orders that no Guns be fired but at the Enemy, Unless by the Leave and in the Presence of an Officer. The Man Slayer must be tried by a Court Martial and I will in a Short time give out a Commission for that Purpose. In the mean time though you are to keep him under Restraint you need not be very rigorous and severe to him seeing you are fully convinced as you say that the Mischief was purely accidental. You have Liberty to come to Boston wn. Coll. Westbrook returns from his March taking leave of him.

Col. Westbrook's Expedition to Norridgewock in Jan., 1722: The Indians learned of this expedition and left their village. Col. Johnson Harmon was sent to Norridgewock with 120 men at the same time with Col. Westbrook and set out on the 6th day of Feb., but the rivers were so open and the ground so full of water that they could neither march on land or ice. Having reached however with great difficulty the upper falls of the Androscoggin River (Lewiston) they divided into scouting parties and returned without seeing any of the enemy. (Pejepscot Papers Vol. 5). This expedition of Harmon's was by order of Col. Westbrook.

In Scarboro in 1723, the Indians shot Serg't. Chubb, whom they mistook for Capt. Harmon, eleven bullets taking effect.

Col. Westbrook in a number of letters written to Lieut.-Gov. Dummer in the spring of 1724, tells of the expeditions of Capt. Johnson Harmon and Lieut. John Harmon against the Indians about York.

The destruction of the village fort, church, and a large number of the Norridgewock tribe was cruelly accomplished in Aug., 1724, but Col. Westbrook was not present. It was done by four companies under Capts. Johnson Harmon, Moulton, Bourne, and Bean. The Indians' priest, Ralse' was the last one killed, but it was done contrary to orders of the commanding officer. Ralse' with the Indian dead were scalped and these bloody trophies were paraded in the streets of Boston, with much triumph. Father Ralse' was killed on Aug. 12, 1724, as Capt. Harmon arrived in Falmouth, on Aug. 18, with the scalps. (See letter of Col. Westbrook below.)

Falmouth, Aug. 18, 1724.

May it please your honour:

Capt. Harmon arrived this day with the Fryar's and 26 Scalps more from Norridgewock and brought Bombazee's Squaw and three more Indian Captives, and retook three English boys. He informs me a great number of Indians are coming on our frontier on Sunday from Canada, and Two Hundred from Penobscutt, for a further account I refer to him. They have taken Lt. Kenady's Coat at Norridgewock, who resided at Saint Georges, which makes me doubt they have taken the Garrison. I am sending Captn. Sanders in his Sloop strongly guarded to that place and am likewise dispatching orders to all the frontiers to be on strict guard. Capt. Harmon and the officers Judge that by the modeste Computation, besides the Scalps and Captives they brought in, what they killed and drowned these could not be less than thirty or fourty. God has now been pleased to Crown your Honour's unwearied Endeavors with success, which I desire to rejoice at. I hope your Honour will smile on Captn. Harmon and favour him with a Commission for a field Officer, I am your Honour's Most Dutiful, Humble Servant.

Thos. Westbrook.

I have Imprest Mr. Doke's Schooner to convey Captn. Harmon to Boston.

(Col. Westbrook m. Mary, dau. of John Sherbourne, of Portsmouth. He d. Feb. 11, 1743, leaving no son. His dau., Elizabeth, m. Richard Waldron, of Portsmouth, on Dec. 31, 1718. She was b. Nov. 26, 1701, and was the only child of Thos. Westbrook. She had a son, Thomas Westbrook Waldron, who was a captain in the Louisburg expedition in 1745 and d. 1785. Thos. Westbrook was an inhabitant of Falmouth in 1727, and built a house at Stroudwater, the Harrow House.)

Capt. Johnson Harmon and Capt. Jeremiah Moulton were two leaders and colonial soldiers. The latter, when a boy, could remember the sack of the town of York by the Indians, and his escape through the snow. Johnson Harmon had also passed through those trying days and his name had already become known and feared by the Indians. Together in the summer of 1724 these men planned and led the third and only successful expedition against Norridgewock. They destroyed the Indian village and killed Father Ralse', the French Catholic Missionary. The Harmons were an old and influential family and their homes were on the shore of York river at the harbor.

(The 250th Anniversary of York, 1902.)

In the summer of 1724, Capt. Harmon and Capt. Jeremiah Moulton led the forces that captured Norridgewock. Whittier refers to it in, "Mog Megone" written in 1834:

"For Bomazeen from Tacconock,
Has sent his runners to Norridgewock,
With tidings that Moulton and Harmon, of York
Far up the river have come."
"With Indian blood on his English sword?
Steals Harmon down from the sands of York,
With hand of iron and foot of cork?"

The following account was taken from the History of Norridgewock, by Allen:

An expedition was sent after the Norridgewock Indians, under command of Capt. Johnson Harmon, in Feb., 1723, which was unsuccessful. But on Aug. 23, 1724, 208 men under command of Capt. Harmon and Moulton, were sent to the headquarters of the warlike tribe. Proceeding up the Kennebec they landed at Winslow, left their boats with a guard at that place and then marched cautiously along the banks of the river. When they approached the enemy, the force was divided; a part making a circuit so as to enclose the village. Most of the Indian warriors were absent, probably in the fields, while destruction was about to fall on their wives and children. It was nearly noon when the unsuspecting natives were thus surrounded by their enemies. A few of the English exposed themselves to the Indians. A young Indian seeing them gave the alarm and rushed into the hut for a musket. The surprised villagers soon commenced to fire upon the intruders, but so precipitately that no damage was done. The English soldiers as they had been directed, reserved their fire until they were within pistol shot, when the slaughter of the savages was terrific. Their ranks were soon broken and they fled, only to meet the fire of the whites, who were advancing from above the village. Hemmed in on all sides, men, women, and children, rushed to the river and were shot down indiscriminately in the water. Father Ralse', their priest, was among the killed. A monument to Ralse' was erected on the spot where the church once stood, by Bishop Fenwick, of Boston, on Aug. 23, 1833.

The New England Courant, of Aug. 24, 1724, gives the following: On Saturday last, Capt. Johnson Harmon arrived in Boston from his expedition against the Indians at Norridgewock, and brought with him 28 scalps, one of which was Father Ralse's, their priest.

The following was taken from the N. E. H. & G. Reg. Vol. 48: His Honour, the Lt.-Governor, in consideration of the extraordinary service of Capt. Harmon, presented him with a commission for Lt. Colonel of his Majesty's Forces Eastward, under command of Col. Westbrook. Col. Harmon made solemn oath that the 27 scalps of Indians, (which were produced in Council) were the scalps of Rebel or enemy Indians slain by him and his command and that they had taken 4 Indian prisoners.

The Manuscript Journal of Rev. William Holmes, of Chilmark, Cape Cod, dated Aug. 30, 1724, gives the following:

The scalps of 28 of the Indians were brought to Boston, of which their Priest and Bomazeen's were two. After shooting and scalping the Indians and with two children as prisoners, Harmon and Moulton, with their whole force lodged in the Wigwams, keeping a guard of 40 men. They started on the return march, leaving the chapel and wigwams standing. Christian, a Mohawk Indian of Harmon's force, was sent or went back and set fire to the wigwams and the Church in the tower of which hung a bell. Of course all the buildings were destroyed and the village and cornfields were left desolate. (Bomazeen was the Indian chief.)

Col. Johnson Harmon was one of the signers of the Indian Articles at Casco Bay, in conference, July 25, 1727. He settled in Harpswell, Me., in 1727. Joseph Harmon, prob. his son, settled in Harpswell, in 1741, both at Merriconeag Neck.

In expressing his desire to take part in the Louisburg Expedition, Col. Johnson Harmon wrote to Col. William Pepperell, as follows:

York, Feb. 6, 1744.

To the Hon. William Pepperell, Esquire, Brigadier General at Kittery, per Capt. Beal.

Honoured Sir:

This waits on you with my duty, wishing you all the success and comfort that prosperity can afford you, in the great trust reposed in you. May the conduct of Heaven always attend you in every scene of life. The Providence of God, blessing Me with so good a measure of health and my inclination being strong to wait on you to Louisburg. I am persuaded there is something yet for me to do there before I leave the world. And as your smile is all I crave in order to my going with you, I shall look for my reward either in the coming world, if I am called off in the cause of my King and Country, or as you see I deserve if ever I return to New England. If you will favour me with a line in answer I Shall look upon it as a token of your regard. I beg leave, Honoured Sir, to Subscribe myself,

Your dutiful humble servant,

Johnson Harmon.

(Col. Johnson Harmon had been in early life one of the most noted Indian fighters of the time and was associated with Col. Moulton in many of his expeditions. At the date of this letter to Col. Pepperell, he must have been well advanced in years. He evidently did not take part in the expedition to Louisburg, as his name does not appear in the register of Louisburg Soldiers.)

CAPT. JOHN HARMON (John, James). b. about 1680, m. 1707, Mehitable Parker, dau. of John and Sarah Parker, of York. Sarah Parker was a dau. of Nicholas Green. Mehitable and her sister, Hannah, were b. July 28, 1684. Capt. Harmon was m. by Capt. Preble, in York. He fought the Indians about York with his brother, Col. Johnson Harmon. He was moderator and also first deacon of York, in 1731. He was captain of the 6th Co. 1st Mass. Regt., in 1744-45, in the French war at Cape Breton. He settled in Sanford in 1754 and probably died there, and was one of the first settlers in Sanford, then Phillipstown. According to the proprietor's records of Phillipstown, John Harmon had lot No. 15, in a list of lots granted to settlers, Nov. 21, 1754. On Friday, Dec. 20, 1754, Capt. John Harmon was empowered to dispose of the trees lying upon the ground.

York Records:

Rev. Samuel Moody at the age of 23 arrived in York May 18, 1698, having just graduated from Harvard College. In 1710 it was decided to build a new Meeting House 50 feet square. It was here that John Harmon, Joseph Sayward, and Micum McIntire and others were given, "ye hinde seat in our meeting house in ye Gallery Provided they fill it." Since these gentlemen were not filling a, "hinde seat," in civil affairs it is fair to assume that they were not under the ban of Father Moody.

Father Moody d. Nov. 13, 1747, age 72, highly respected. The parsonage was burned in 1742, and all the records were lost. Joseph Holt, brother-in-law to John Harmon, was deacon in 1739.

Capt. John Harmon, at Louisburg:

When war was declared by France in March, 1744, and by Great Britain in April, and preparations by the government of Mass. were made for sending an expedition to Louisburg, Canada, the command of the expedition was given to Col. William Pepperell, who was then about 49 years old. Col. Jeremiah Moulton, of York, commanded the 3d Reg't. and Capt. John Harmon was in command of the 6th company, in the 1st Regt., which was commanded by Col. Pepperell. Benjamin Harmon was a lieutenant of 6th company.

Col. William Vaughan, of the Louisburg campaign, in a letter, dated, Portsmouth, Feb. 8, 1744, to Hon. William Pepperell, Esq., at Kittery, writes: I hope Capt. Donnell will be appointed a Lieut. Col. and Elder Harmon a Major, as he (Harmon) was ye first man yt engaged with me in ye affair, even before Capt. Donnell came. I was lately at York and find the people exceedingly ready to go, but are in confusion on account of officers. (Elder Harmon was prob. Deacon Harmon and a brother of Col. Johnson Harmon.)

The following was taken from a register of commissions in the Army, under command of Hon. William Pepperell, Esq., for an expedition against the French settlement on Cape Breton and at (Louisburg):

William Pepperell, Esq., Lieutenant General and Commander-in-Chief, date of comission, Jan. 31, 1745 from Governor Shirley.

John Harmon Capt. of 6th Company in 1st Regt. date of commission, Feb. 5, 1744 from Col. Pepperell.

Benjamin Harmon Lieutenant 6th Company, 1st Regt. date of commission, Feb. 5, 1744.

killed Father Sebastian Ralse', in the expedition against the Indians at Norridgewock, Me., in 1724. Harmon and Jacques moved to Harpswell, Me., in 1727, and later Jacques was mortally wounded by the Indians and died there. Great brutality is chargeable to the English in the Norridgewock affair according to their own account, such as killing women and children and scalping and mangling the body of Father Ralse'.

Lieut. Jacques also led the Harpswell forces in the Louisburg expedition

He spent twelve years compiling the genealogy of all the Harmons who were descendants of John Harmon, the first, of Springfield, Mass. The genealogy contains over 3500 names (in 1897), and is a most complete work of any family history in America. By his will he gave his great work, a large book and hundreds of papers, of Harmon families, to the town of Suffield, Conn. (In the town clerk's office in 1920). Mr. Harman (as he spelled the name), was admitted to the bar in Rutland County, Vt., in 1833, became bank cashier in 1848, and judge of the municipal court of Bennington, Vt. He died Mar. 29, 1898, and was survived by one son, Henry A. Harman, of Rutland, Vt., who was born May 6, 1845. He is living in Rutland in 1920. Henry A. Harman m. Ella Bromley. Their children are:

THE BRAINTREE, MASS., BRANCH.

NATHANIEL HARMON, of Braintree, Mass., in 1640, b. prob. in England, m. about 1638, Mary Bliss, dau. of Thomas Bliss and Dorothy Wheatlie, of Rehoboth, Mass. Mary Bliss was bp. in England, Mar. 16, 1616-17, and she was 21 years old when her father came to America. Her father, Thomas Bliss, was b. in 1585-88, in Daventry, England, and d. about 1649, in Rehoboth, Mass. Thomas Bliss m. 1st, in 1614, Dorothy Wheatlie, who d. before 1646; he m. 2d, before 1647, the widow of ——— Ide, in New England. Nathaniel Harmon was made freeman, May 10, 1643, in Braintree, Mass. (In the early records this name was written, Hermon.)

Children b. in Braintree:

Nathaniel, b. 8 (12) 1640, (Probably the first Harmon b. in America.)

Mary, b. 15 (12), 1642.

Samuel (?), of Boston, Mass. In tax list of 1674-95. Samuel, of Boston left a widow, Sarah, before 1693, and a son, James, mariner of Boston, who was deceased in 1693.

John (?), bp. 20 mo. 4, 1652. (John Hamon, bp. 20 mo. 4, 1652, a record in Dorchester Church Records.)

Sarah, b. 1 mo. 3, 1652. Jonathan, b. 24 mo. 4, 1654.

Elizabeth (?), m. Dec. 1, 1691, Richard Flood, in Boston.

Thomas Bliss (mentioned above) was proprietor at Mt. Wollaston, Braintree, Mass., in 1639. Made freeman May 18, 1642, removed to Rehoboth, made freeman in Plymouth Colony in 1645, and town officer in 1647. His will of June 21, 1647, in court June 8, 1649, provides for his son Jonathan; eldest dau., the wife of Thomas Williams; Mary, wife of Nathaniel Harmon; son-in-law, Nicholas Ide; and son, Nathaniel. In June 7, 1648, Nicholas Ide petitioned the court for a child's portion of the estate. (Pope's Mass. Pioneers.)

The records of Braintree concerning Nathaniel Harmon: In 1645 Nathaniel Herman and 19 other inhabitants of Braintree, petitioned the court for liberty to begin a plantation where Gorton and his company had erected two or more houses at Shawemet, a part of Punhom's land, but they were opposed.

The sale of Dudatus Curtis' land to Thomas Barrit was dated, 4 mo. 10, 1651. The land contained 7 acres lying next to Thomas Burt on the west side, and next to the common on the south, next to Barnabas Derrifall on the north, and next to Nathaniel Herman on the east side. It was sold by Martin Sanders and Francis Elliott, the owners.

The records of Mendon, Mass., state: On May 5, 1662, "the committee for Nipmugg," met at Dorchester and made rules for conducting the settlement and admitting allotments of land to certain persons who were ordered to settle there before the end of the 7th mo., 1663-4. These persons who received the lands were mostly from Braintree, and included Nathaniel Herman. Nathaniel Herman had his grant renewed at Dedham, Mass., in 1663. He did not settle at Mendon, however, as his name does not appear on the books.

(It is not known what became of Nathaniel and his family. The last mention of his name was in 1663, at Dedham. Ephraim Harmon, the son, was buried Aug. 27, 1683, at Rehoboth, Mass. Nathaniel probably returned to England or died about 1665.)
